How To Make Money In A Niche Affiliate Marketing Program

If you want to make money with any niche affiliate program you join, you must first of all have an idea of the kind of products/services that should be sold in the niche before you can sell in that niche. You can do this if you know the niche, the targets in the niche, what targets in the niche want, the problems they have in the niche and the solutions to them, what others are giving them and the highest value to give them. With these you'll be able to know and determine what products/services will meet the needs/wants of your targets and solve their problems in your niche exactly.

In other words you can't just pick a product/service to sell and start promoting it, you must know that the product/service you sell is the right product/service to sell in the niche that your targets would want when they see the value it offers.

Once you've determined the right products/services to sell in your niche, you can then join the affiliate programs having such products/services. You may look at the commission you will earn on the different affiliate programs you join and then choose the best commission rates if the products/services with those commissions are the right products/services for your niche and if they'll give your targets the value they want.

To make money, you'll also need to know where your targets are online, that is, you'll need to promote on targeted ad media to make the sale.

Every ad media you use will not have your targets on them, you must therefore ensure that the ad media you promote on have your targets on them, if you sell shoes to shoe end-users (people who buy shoes to wear) for example you'll need to promote where you know you can reach those end-users and not where only shoe-marketers frequent, if it's an ad medium like the search engines where it's with the use of keywords you'll reach your targets, you'll look for keywords that are likely to have been typed by shoe end-users and not shoe-marketers for example.

Using the wrong ad media to promote your online business will not only delay how soon you make money but may also result in you not making any money at all, you'll want to avoid this, hence do a diligent work on the ad media you use to know if your targets can be on them and can be reached through them to make the sale.
